The first Agile Prague Conference will be held on 29-30 September 2011, in City Empiria, in Prague. This event brings together the managers, developers, testers, and other IT industry professionals interested in the agile software development. The conference will be divided into two separate tracks, one oriented toward the managers and adoption of agile in the organization, the second track will be focused on developers and testers.

We invited the well-recognized international authorities. They are going to share their knowledge on how the adoption of agile methodology has helped numerous companies reach their business objectives. The speakers will share their hands-on experience with various agile & lean methods. You will also learn how the agile process can be adopted in your organization.

This event is for professionals in the IT industry who want to deliver high-quality software in a changing and demanding environment. Agile methodology in software development is a flexible and inspiring approach that drives engagement and faster delivery to market.

“Agile methods are the step in evolution of the project management. But what will become the future methodology? Despite the name, it will be even more dynamic, efficient, flexible and change responsive than agile currently is.” said Zuzana Sochova, Agile coach and trainer and co-founder of Agile Association.

“As a co-founder of the Agile Association in the Czech Republic I’m very proud that we can bring the event to the heart of Europe - Prague. Nowadays Agile is one of the most discussed items in software development industry, from small startups to big enterprises, simply in all places, where the developers and managers look for more effective and productive ways to create software. The Agile community is growing every day and Agile approach is now getting the biggest momentum ever.” said Eduard Kunc, co-founder of the Agile Association and Sr. Director of Software Engineering at CA Technologies.

The Agile Association, a non-profit organization that propagates the knowledge and hands-on experience about agile methodology in software development, has partnered with IBM, Agile Alliance, CA Technologies, Kerio, LMC, CoolPeople, Seznam.cz, ScrumDesk, Czech Technical University in Prague - Faculty of Information Technology, DNS, Lotofidea, Agilní Asociace, Simple Way and WebExpo to organize the Agile Prague Conference.
